Proposed Amendments to Carver County Ordinance 153: Water Resource Management

Why are changes needed?

As required by Minnesota Statutes $103B.231, the CCWMO adopted an updated watershed management plan (Plan) on October 27, 2010. As required by Minn. Statute, the CCWMO must update regulatory controls that implement the Plan within two years of adopting the Plan.

The proposed changes to the ordinance are the result of the CCWMO's plan revision and experience applying the current ordinance. Many of the proposed changes clarify the current standards, incorporate into the ordinance interpretations that have developed over time, and address gaps or specific problem areas that have become apparent since the last ordinance was adopted. The proposed changes also incorporate the concepts and approach to stormwater management known as Minimal Impact Design (MID); statewide MID standards are currently under development by the MPCA.

Ordinance Revision Process

The CCWMO's current ordinance was adopted on January 10, 2006, and took effect upon its passage. To assist with the development and review of a revised ordinance, the CCWMO established a Technical Advisory Committee (TAC) consisting of technical representatives of government agencies, municipalities, and citizen representatives in December 2010. The TAC has provided review and comment throughout the ordinance revision process.

What types of changes are proposed?

The proposed revisions encompass the following:

- Increasing the total phosphorus requirement to 90% removal
- Increasing the total suspended solids requirement to 90% removal
- Adding a 0.5 inch volume control requirement
- Clarifying requirements for mitigating upstream and downstream impacts
- Adding a requirement to establish wetland transition setbacks for projects meeting the threshold for a stormwater management permit
- Clarifying floodplain alteration requirements
- Clarifying the application of the stormwater management rule new development, redevelopment, and linear projects
- Updating the list of activities that are exempt from all or portions of the ordinance
- Updating the project thresholds for review and approval
- Providing more specific criteria on the form of security allowed
- Updating the financial security section to allow partial release of the security
- Clarifying/reducing number of submittal requirements
- Revising existing definitions and adding new terms
- Created Appendix A to outline best management practices eligible for volume control and water quality
- Created Appendix B to specify maintenance requirements
